PUBLISHER'S COLUMN

Here Comes 2016!

Dave Allen

Yep...here it comes and, once again, we try to look forward to many changes for the better.

However, there are a number of items and happenings that are working to diminish this annual optimism.

Two New York trials are in process locally that emphasize why so many are cynical about the entire local political structure.

Add the rapid fall of one of the premier Long island restaurateurs with his inside influence and ability to 'work the system' and the cynicism grows.

No, it isn't just the political animals that represent this attitude...did anyone notice that right after PS&G (LIPA, LILCO whatever) received the political approval for a long term rate increase, they announced the discovery that they have plenty of power to serve Long Island for an extra number of years. (of course their stock went up with their new found revenues and reduced spending needs).

Add the fact that we face a full year of political carping with little to discern quality differences from one candidate to another, and, of course, we have the heightened concerns over religious zealots who view murder and mayhem as a solution for world peace.

If you have read this far, you probably expect a really negative close to this note... On the contrary... let's consider a couple of resolutions for the coming year:

- Maintain the spirit of Good Will we celebrate during the Holiday Season.
- At least once a week try to hear what the other side is saying
- Vote in every election... not for the status quo, but for those who are willing to take on the corrupt system. And, "Get Involved"
- Choose a charity and/or not for profit that works to make a difference, and actually participate.

... And Happy New Year
